Admirers of Freedom

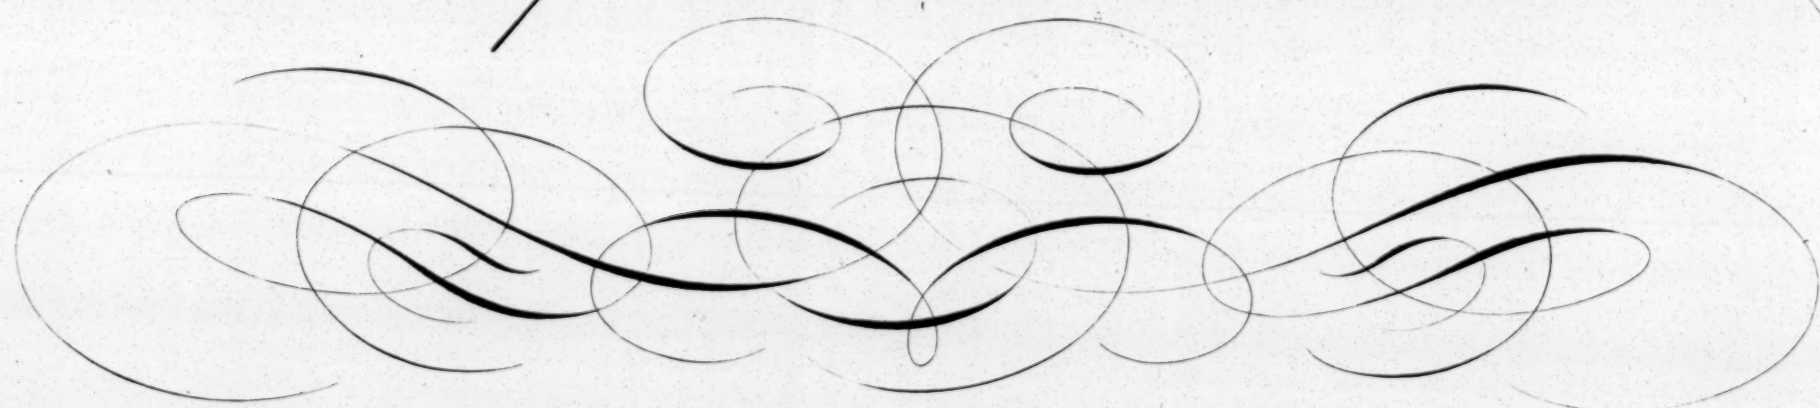

By their most obedient and most devoted humble Servant

Richard Langford.

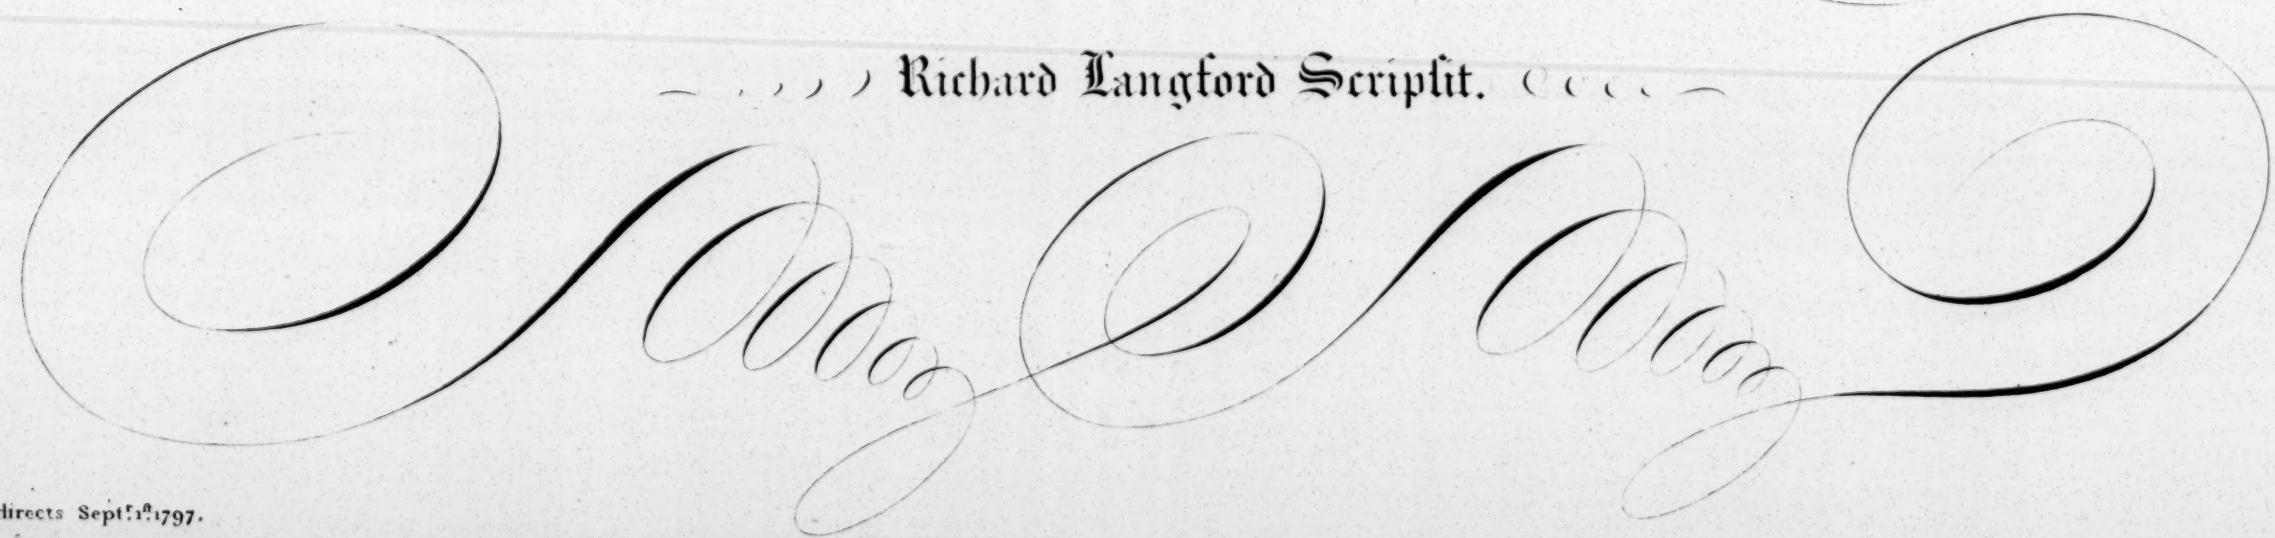

Nothing is so universally advantageous to mankind or ornamental to human nature
as an accomplished and virtuous education.

Richard Langford Scripsit.

Penmanship is held in such high estimation
as to be considered one of the greatest productions of human ingenuity; it is an indispen-sible qualification and universally practised.

The most improves who studies with delight.

And learns sound morals whilst he learns to write.

As you expect that men should deal by you,
So deal with them and give each man his due.

Beware
~g~
DRUNKENNESS;

It impairs the understanding, wastes the estate, banishes the reputation, consumes the body, & renders a man of the brightest parts, the common jest of an insignificant clown.
